Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 06 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Cold with clear spells tonight. Sunshine and showers for Wednesday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Mostly dry with clear spells across the region with any lingering showers in the far east and the south easing during the evening. Clear spells will continue overnight for another cold night with widespread frost to form. Breezy. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Wednesday:
Dry, sunny start, but cloud tending to build throughout the day. Remaining mostly dry with isolated showers in the west, though a band of heavy rain arriving overnight. Feeling cold. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Often cloudy with occasional rain on Thursday, but milder than recently. Turning brighter from the north on Friday, with wintry showers following on Saturday. Remaining cold.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.